Why is Light Squared using a permit acquired for Satellite based low power application as a land based high power permit. How did this change take place? It seems someone in your organization was intentionally looking the other way. This looks like some kind of insider deal and I do not like it one bit. It is absurd to think that the immense number of GPS dependent applications could just be stepped on without horrible results. Shut these Light Squared people out and revoke their permit permanently.

Thanks for your time,
